

„It is astonishing, the way Kufferath pivots between free and fragile, from heavenly chirping tenderness to bearing the earth's burdens, how many colors and even more nuance her playing expresses.“ (Die Welt)

Praised by conductor Heinz Hollinger as “unquestionably one of the most interesting and influential string players of her generation,” she is a player with a wide-ranging stylistic palate, and is coveted as both a chamber musician and soloist.

She has collaborated with composers including Moritz Eggert, Zeynep Gedizlioglu, Helen Grime, Ling-Hsuan Huang, Libby Larsen, Georges Lentz, Manfred Trojahn, and Jörg Widmann.

As a soloist, she has appeared with orchestras including the WDR Symphony Orchestra Cologne, Münchener Kammerorchester, Deutsche Radiophilharmonie Saarbrücken Kaiserslautern, Philharmonic Orchestra Gießen, Göttinger Sinfonieorchester, Oldenburgisches Staatsorchester, Ensemble Oriol, Musica assoluta, Kammerakademie Potsdam, and the World Youth Symphony Orchestra. The disk features contemporary works for solo violin and viola by Luciano Berio, Elliott Carter, György Kurtág, and Jan Müller-Wieland. The recording was nominated for a prize from German Record Critics' Award and was enthusiastically received by the press. Die Welt acclaimed “It is astonishing, the way [Elisabeth] Kufferath pivots between free and fragile, from heavenly chirping tenderness to bearing the earth's burdens, how many colors and even more nuance her playing expresses.” A concert tour featuring works from the CD has been made possible by the generous support of the foundation Stiftung Niedersachsen. She has additionally recorded the violin concerto of Albert Dietrich and the viola concerto of Karl Amadeus Hartmann.

Elisabeth Kufferath lives in Hannover, Germany with her family where she is professor of violin at the Hochschule for Music, Theater, and Media. Both her violin and viola were built by the German luthier Stefan-Peter Greiner.
